RESPECTABLE WITNESSES.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Providence (R. I.) Journal, referring to our contention that the argument against enrangling alliances is still the primary one against annexation of the Philippines, says that that is easy enough to assert. but asks, "Can the Dispatch prove it?" "How." it continues, "are we going to get into any entanglement by taking over the islands." of Washington, the accepted father of the doctrine against entangling alliances, and who ought, we think, to be still entitled to some standing in court. After jetting forth that Europe has a set of primary interests, which to us have none or very remote relation, and declaring that it would be unwise for us to implicate ourselves in European politics, Washington says: "If we remain one peo ple under an efficient government, the period is not far off when we may defy material injury from external annoyance; when we may take such an attitude as will cause the neutrality we may at any time resolve upon to be scrupulously respected; when belligerent nations, under the impossibility of making acquisitions upon us, will not lightly hazard the giving us provocation; when we may choose peace or war as our interest guided by justice, shall counsel. Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation? Why quit our own to stand on foreign ground? Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the tolls of European ambition, rivalship, interest, humor, or caprice?" Here we have the germ and the inspiration of the Monroe doctrine; for Washington not only warns us not to interfere in European interests and politics, but cautions us against inviting Europe to make acquisitions upon us. To annex the Philippines would be to commit both of these blunders. Nothing could be more illogical than the supposition that if we attempted to divide with Europe the primacy of the Eastern Hemisphere, she would recognize us as primate of this hemisphere, should it prove to her interest and in line with the consummation of her ambition not to do so.

And for the corroboration of Washington's testimony, as above given, we would file that part of the message of date of March 15, 1826, of John Quincy Adams, in which the Massachusetts statesman quotes that testimony and the Monroe doctrine also, and emphasize both. Surely, our New England contemporary cannot but accept Mr. Adams as a competent and intelligent witness.

But, to call upon Washington again, H. says: "Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence (I conjure you, fellow-citi zens, to believe me), the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful focs of republican government." the light of recent developments truly it would seem that Washington saw this far into the future. Will it be denied that from one foreign quarter, at least, influence is being exerted to stimulat the annexation and imperialistic sentiment in this country? And, considering the interests in the far East of the nation for which that influence speaks, can it be doubted that this great "concern for our prestige" points to an ultimate alliance, and the consequent drawing of the United States into the maelstrom of European diplomacy and politics? This much in answer to our contemporary's questions. However, we have not given-all of the testimony of Washington against the wisdom of a policy

Asiatic group. The most ardent defenders of imperialism admit that the annex ation of the Philippines would necessitate a vast increase in our standing army. What does Washington say as bearing upon that admission? Hear nim: "Hence, likewise, they (the United States) will avoid the necessity of those overgrown military establishments, which, under any form of government, are inauspicious to liberty, and which are to be regarded as particularly hostile to republican liberty." So, we say in conclusion, that although we may not have proved our case to the satisfaction of our Imperialistic contemporary, we have, we think, at least shown that there are some very respectable witnesses on our side, and that imperialism and new statesmanship are a little vulnerable at more points

RICHMOND STOCK-YARDS.

The Dispatch sees the realization of its hopes in the matter of a union stock-yard. After years and years of waiting, an organization has been formed here with the view of establishing yards near this city. The company will have ample means, and it has purchased a large tract of land near where Leigh street joins the Hermitage road. It purposes erecting its office buildings not far from the road and nearly opposite the brewery; but the pens will be distant from the road and on the north side of the creek. A spur track will be run from the Fredericksburg railroad, and the entire equipment of the yards will be modern and good. We understand that a small hotel, or lodging-house, will be built for the accommodation of drovers; a provision now general at the stock-yards in the great cities. A reliable supply of water will be needed, and the company has petitioned our City Council to let them become a patron of our water-works. Doubtless, their request will be granted. Other large industries in Henrico are allowed to have city water.

With the establishment of these stockyards our people will be relieved of the abominable nuisance of having droves of eattle taken through our streets. Moreover, cattle, upon arriving here, will be much better attended to than now. A cattle train, upon reaching the stockyards, will find men in waiting there to feed and water the animals. The stock will not be imprisoned indefinitely in close cars, but will be promptly turned loose into lots. Again, it will then be much easier to inspect cattle intended for our market than it is now. The convenience of drovers, buyers, etc., will, of course, be greatly promoted.

Two years ago it seemed highly improbable that such an organization as this could be formed. There were many interests to be consulted; many prejudices to be removed; much work to be done in convincing investors that it would pay. All of that now belongs to the past. The stock-yards are assured. Next spring they will be in actual operation, and we feel sure the result will be beneficial to Richmond, Doubtless, we shall then do a larger cattle business, and cattle will reach here and be butchered in better Davis. Her history and her title were condition.

Oh, yes; it is going to be a fine thing for Richmond, and, we hope and believe, for those who have put money into the

CORBETT AND M'COY.

Grim visaged war has again embellished its wrinkled front with a few additional kinks, and the rumblings of discord are heard throughout the land, Two mighty leviathans have met, and the world has trembled at the onslaught. In plain, every-day language, the once "great and only" James Corbett has been kicked by his hated antagonist, "Kid" McCoy, and what is more shocking still, the quondam champion of America's fistic ring has had his hat removed from his head by the foot of him whose appellation suggests a juvenile goat.

It all happened a few days ago in a certain hostelry known as the Gilsey House, in the city of New York. By a mischance the blatant pair of unfought fighters met in that hotel, and after some feeble imitations of politeness on the part of their respective suites, one Gray, referring to the much-discussed "scrap," which is on the tapis, said unto Pompadour Jim: "I don't think you want to

To make a remark of this kind to a "gent" who is a pugilist by profession is like accusing a lawyer of not recognizing a fee simple estate when he meets it on the street, and even now we can hear Jim's stentorian tones as he thundered in reply, "What's that?" And so, also, we can, even as we write, hear Corbett's supplemental language as he melo-dramatically thunders forth, "I'll fight him now and right here."

A few seconds later the chivalric "Kid" ambled up, and administered unto the hat of the pugnacious Corbett a certain high kick, which sent the headgear spinning with frightful velocity. But not half has yet been told. A moment afterwards the same foot of the same "Kid" dug deep into the groin of Sullivan's conqueror, and then, uniting with its life companion, sped the recalcitrant McCoy into a side entrance of the hotel. The sweet-tempered victim of this degrading pedal assault had no opportunity for revenge, for his peaceful friends smelling fire and brimstone at the outset of the meeting, seized and held him. so that the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth might be preserved immaculate. But oh! that words could express the pent-up wrath which surges in the bosom of the battered pugilist.

None can predict what the future will bring forth, but the public is relieved. Something important had to happen after the war to loosen the tension, and now the body politic breathes easier.

We wait with bated breath the 9000 columns of threats and journalistic altercations which will follow the incident. and mean while we shall study up the prospects for foot-ball. In time of peace prepare for war.

We are glad to see this statement. It

Newport News is now extending her ounteous hospitality to the Virginia State Firemen's Association, and, according to the statement of a paper published in that enterprising city, "the town is theirs till they shake the dust from their feet."

In Richmond and the larger cities, where the firemen are paid, we do not attach the same importance to this class of citizens that they enjoy in other towns. but our brethren in the smaller municipalities realize their worth and take a personal pride in the men. Indeed, the firemen will always hold a unique position in American history and in the hearts of the American people. Whether paid or not, the work of these brave fellows is a most important one, and the good they do is incalculable. In a certain sense they never sleep, but are eternally the servants of the public, ready and anxious to risk their lives, if necessary, in checking "the devouring element," which is one of man's worst and most destructive enemies.

The local companies throughout the State are well drilled and efficient. Their first lessons are in the importance of concerted action and cool headwork. They do not rush pell-mell to a fire and attack it at will, but work together as harmonious parts of a well-ordered piece of machinery. Without them the smaller towns, which are unable to have paid departments and expensive apparatus, would always be at the mercy of the incendiary and the careless individual who scatters sparks regardless of the direful conse quences which generally follow such wan-

We might even go so far as to say that in his proper sphere the volunteer fireman is more useful than the volunteer soldier. He does not enjoy the same eclat. nor is he so ornamental, but when bravery, courage, and judgment are to be tested he stands pre-eminent. His good deeds, if reduced to a cash valuation, would mount up into the millions, while his compensation, though not to be reckoned in dollars and cents, is the best of all rewards-the consciousness of duty well and faithfully performed.

NO SUCCESSOR.

The consensus of dewspaper opinion is against the selection of any one to succeed Miss Winnie Davis in the title of "The Daughter of the Confederacy."

General John B. Gordon, who bestowed upon Miss Davis this sobriquet, and who is the Grand Commander of the United Confederate Veterans, is also opposed to any one's succeeding to that title.

That is the practical and the sentimen tal view as well. The name fitted Miss Winnie because she was the only child born in "the White House of the Confederacy," and because she was the pet of her father in his old age.

Nor could any one else fill her place in the affection of our veterans. Of lovely and lovable young women who are daughters of distinguished Confederates, and who are dear to our Confederate organizations and to all our people, there are not few, but there is no other Winnie unique, and it is her right to be remembered as the first and last of that name, Cleveland is situated in the very centre of a district in which more than four million baskets of grapes, fit for table use will be marketed this year. That means a crop of about thirty-six million pounds, or 18,000 tons. • • These facts make it especially unfortunate, in this part o the country, that foolish talk of the danger of causing appendicitis by eating the seeds of grapes has spoiled the pleasure which many persons would otherwise have in availing themselves of the bounty of nature which is manifested every year in the vineyards around Cleveland. Abdominal surgery has become so fashionable that the vermiform appendix has ac-quired unnatural and somewhat fictitious interest for millions of Americans who grape-growing sections.-The Cleveland Leader.

Dr. Hunter McGuire, of Richmond stated a year or two ago that he had performed a great number of operations for appendicitis, and in no case had he found the much-feared grape-seed. The grape seed theory, in short, is one of those theories that "ain't so."

A dispatch to the London Daily Mail from Cape Town says General Kitchener has cabled to Cecil Rhodes the question; "When are you coming up?"

This is probably a joke, but it is a prophetic one. If Rhodes lives he will, "get there." That is as certain as that the Khalifa has been smashed and the Sirdar has raised the Egyptian flag over Fashoda.

On with the trolley railway line to deep water and other regions! It's a "hummer," so to speak. We would like to see it practically "to hum." as the Yankees say, in the case of every dweller within fifty miles of Richmond, or over a wider area, with this city always as the centre of the system.

And now we have a coffin trust-a big undertaking, as it were.

Enthusiastic for Rhea.

(Marion Democrat.)

Both editors of the Democrat, together with several other Marion parties, went down to Abingdon on Monday to hear the er, congressional candidates. We were disappointed in this by reason of Walk-er's friends being afraid for him to discuss-but we heard Judge Rhea's magnificent three hours' speech in which hot shot fell so thick and fast that we saw readily the wisdom of General Walker's friends in keeping him out of range. We mingled with Washington county citizens freely, and were agreeably surprised to find the county united and enthusiastic for Rhea. All reports to the contrary may be put down as false. Rhea sealed the fate of the county Monday, and he will secure a round majority theme. Mark our words.

A RELIGION OF LIFE Judaism is above all things a religion of life. It provides for the crises and the commonplaces. It has a voice for the storm and the calm. As God in the beginning looked upon all things, and said is good," so does Judaism look upon life and say that it is good, that it "it is gladsome, full of sunshine, and of the song of birds and the fragrance of flowers." This lesson is taught by the festival, and everywhere it Succoth sounds forth the melody of gladness and good cheer. THE MEANS AND THE END. But there is a vast difference between what is done for necessity, and what is what is done for necessity, and what is done for indulgence. We must avoid mis-taking the means for the end. The senses are avenues of the soul, and that which we give to them must be that which leads on, through them, up to the soul, even as the bread that we eat is assimilated into the blood. But the fault with many of us is, that we continue to eat bread even after the blood has been enriched and satisfied, because we like the bread and its taste tickles our palate. The speaker made a further applica-tion of his thought to our national con-ditions. We are rejoicing before God because of the victories we have achieved on sea and land. We should rejoice on sea and land, righteously in that we do not allow our selves to be misled by lust of conquest or greed for land. The greatest victory is that over temptation, the greatest con-quest, that of self.

Brown, Clerk of the County and Circuit courts. of that county, were married at King George Courthouse Wednesday evening, Rev. T. J. Wray performing the cere-mony. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. J. Clifford Ninde, Deputy Treasurer, and the groom was attended y Mr. Wilson Ashton as best man.

Mr. Joseph S. Mason, a well-known shoemaker of this city, died at his residence, on Liberty street, last night, after an illness of five weeks. He was a native of Caroline county, but has resided here for the past twelve years. He leaves a wife and seven children, and was in the 44th year of his age. His remains will be taken to the home of his brother, Mr. John D. Mason, near Ruther Glen, to-morrow, and after services will be in-terred in the family burying-ground.

Rev. E. H. Rowe, of Bowling Green, in the absence of Rev. J. P. Stump, of the Methodist church here, who will assist in the dedication of a church in Woodstock Sunday, will preach for that divine Sunday morning and night.

The fair, which closed yesterday, was the most successful yet held, and with the exception of the accidents to jockeys, nothing occurred to mar the pleasures of the occasion.

Some time Tuesday night a party or parties entered the stable of Mr. P. E. Wise and took therefrom his black driving mare; also, bridle and harness. his efforts to locate the horse, the animal could not be traced. Last night, however, he was found in one of the wagon-yards but when or how he came there is un-known. When the owner of the yard went to supper, though, the horse was not there. The harness is yet missing, and the appearance of the horse indicated that he had been roughly driven.

Mrs. Lizzle Cabill Commits Suicide-Body Terribly Burned. FREDERICKSBURG, VA., September

30.-(Special.)-This evening between 5 and 6 o'clock several persons standing near the residence of Mrs. Lizzle Cahill observed smoke issuing from the front room of the building, and failing to receive any respose after repeated knocks at the door, which was locked, they forced an entrance. The sight which me their gaze was horrifying. In the centre of the room, near a big armchair, lay Mrs. Cahill almost nude, and her body burned nearly to a crisp. Without making any examination, those who had entered the room reported that she had been burned to death by her catching fire from the grate. On the arrival of the Coroner, however, it was disclosed that apparently no fire had been in the grate for some hours. An examination of the Body was then made and in turning it over a 38-calibre Brit-ish buildog pistol was found under her. A further examination then disclosed that she had shot herself through the left breast, and after considerable pro-bing the ball was located near her left shoulder. The fire is supposed to have been caused by the flash from the powder. Mrs. Cahili was about 60 years of age, and widow of the well-known po-lice officer, Martin Cahill. The pistol with which she killed herself was one by him when on duty. One daughter sur-vives her, Miss Lizzie Cahill, who, a the time of the occurrence, was performing her duties at the silk-mill.

SENATOR MARTIN TALKS. Takes a Bright View of the Demoeratic Prospects. NORFOLK, VA., &eptember 30 .- (Spe-

Miss Susie Warburton, of Richmond, is cial.)-United States Senator Thomas S. Martin is at the Monticello. To your correspondent he stated that he was confi dent of the success of the Democratic party throughout the country this fall. "You know," he stated, "that congressional elections are almost infallible prophecies of the result in presidential years." Senator Martin had very little to say concerning his own prospects in the forthcoming senatorial race in Vir-General Fitzhugh Lee, will probably confront him again.

The Senator is deeply interested in the Second District congressional race now on in earnest. He thinks that Young should regain his seat easily, but ventures no prediction as to whether he will be al-lowed to retain it, if the next House is Republican. The proposed $2,000,000 dry-dock and other improvements at the Norfolk navy-yard, he says, will almost unquestionably be constructed. Kenrsarge and Kentucky.

moval of Building-Social. BERRYVILLE, VA., September 20, (Special.)-The interest in the poisoning of George W. Everhart and his two co dren on the 47th instant increases as time passes and the perpetrator of the crime is still unknown. A report published this week that Miss Fanny Pyles, a sister-in-law of Everhart, had been arrested, and upon evidence heard sent on to the grand jury, was incorrect. Everhart did swear out a warrant before Justice J. W. Vorous against the girl, charging her with the deed, and the case was set for Wednesday. Both Everhart and Miss Pyles were present before Justice J. T. Spr at Boyce, but no other witnesses app. ing and Everhart refusing to testify, al-though Miss Pyles asked for a hearing the case was dismissed and the accused released. A special grand jury has been summoned to appear at the October term of the County Court (October 4th), and
